SEEK YE FIRST THE KINGDOM OF GOD

Researchers have said that before our children are twenty years old they will have viewed over a million advertisements.
And it is estimated that today's young parents spend more time shopping than they do playing with their children.
We are the world's greatest consumers and some say materialism is our new religion.

Our society seemingly directs us to define ourselves by our material wealth.
We are pushed to believe that more is better, bigger is better and our value as human beings is graded by the size of our portfolio or the wages we earn or the car we drive.

Have we come to worship our material goods to the exclusion of the worship of God?
Has Madison Ave been that successful?

You may recognize our Lord's words in today's Gospel from the Sermon on the Mount. St Matthew has given us that sermon in three chapters of his Gospel (5,6 &7). There is something wondrous about reading our Lord's words.

The Sermon on the Mount is a great read but fair warning:
 if you take it to heart it will change your life.

His Jewish audience of 2000 years ago knew exactly what Jesus meant when he told them

You cannot serve both God and mammon.
 But 2000 years later it is not so clear to us.

First of all, who or what is Mammon?

The word mammon comes from both the Greek and Aramaic.
 Both words refer to wealth, money,
 but in the sense of avarice.

Materialism is nothing new to the human condition and the ancients had personified the allure and the quest for wealth in a pagan statue they named Mammon.

He who made us knows us so well, knows that we can be distracted by the quest for monetary wealth,
 knows that for some the quest would be all consuming; knows that for some, money is the greatest contestant for the place of God in our lives, knows that for some the quest for wealth would replace the quest that God intends for us—the way to the Kingdom of God.

In times of economic plenty
 We are content and complacent
 And forget all about where it comes from

In times of uncertainty it is our nature to become anxious to focus on money and to let money consume our hearts and minds as an immediate need.

But Jesus is telling us to do just the opposite in the Sermon on the Mount.

He tells us to Seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you.

By some analysis, one sixth of the parables Jesus gave us, deal with aspects of money or wealth.

It is not that Jesus had it in for wealth or had it in for money.

Jesus did not hate rich people.

But He knows that since creation and since the fall in the Garden of Eden, our lot is to work for our living in this life.

Jesus knows the important role money must play in our secular lives and in our Christian lives.

He who made everything from nothing is telling us how to keep money in balance and in perspective.

He knows that there will be times for all of us and there will be those for whom all time is devoted to mammon.

The section of Jesus' Sermon on the Mount in today's Gospel is His instruction to not let Mammon draw us away from the central purpose of our lives
—the search in this life for the Kingdom of God in the next.

The instruction is that we cannot serve both God and Mammon.

They are pathways that lead away from each other and will never cross.

If we seek Mammon
we will not find God.
He is not there.

But there is some startlingly good news in the service of God.
God knows of all the things we need in this life and Jesus is telling us that if first we seek the kingdom of God, all of what we need will be added unto us.

Today's Gospel is not an invitation to quit working, quit paying your bills, run up your credit cards follow God and He will miraculously provide for your needs.
It is a statement that He has already done so.
In providing for us,
God does not treat us in the same fashion as the birds and the lilies.

Instead of feeding and clothing and sheltering us directly;
God provides us with our talents, our minds and an opportunity to labor.
Some say that we got work not worms to eat.

He gives us all that we need to prosper in this life.
But we need to put them to good use, to use those talents and qualities in the service of our Lord, to keep our hearts and minds and lives focused on God, not Mammon.

The second message of this Gospel
Concerns worry for our lives
Worry of loss
Worry from the fear of uncertainty

We are, by our nature prone to become anxious about where our next meal is to come from.

And in times of want that anxiety is all too genuine for all too many of us.

But Jesus tells us three times in this short Gospel, be not anxious for your life.

Trust in God.

Read what it says on our money,
“In God we Trust”
(not Mammon).

Jesus reminds us that the primary objective of this life is to seek the Kingdom of God, and His Righteousness.

I want to tell you the story of Horatio Spafford and his family.

Not because he was a very successful lawyer in Chicago in the 1870's

And not because he amassed great wealth in wonderful buildings on the lake in Chicago

I want to tell you his story because of the message it brings Seeking first the Kingdom of God

Spafford and his wife Anna had 5 children. They shared a touching love story.

But their life of bliss began to crack

When their youngest child, a little boy died of scarlet fever at 4 years old.

And when a year later, the Great Chicago fire of October 1871 burned for three days and turned the Spafford holdings to ashes.

The family was distraught and Horatio decided to accept the invitation of a friend, a Billy Graham of his day to join a Christian revival in England. The friend kindly thought it was just what the Spaffords needed.

They traveled to New York to board the French steamship Ville de Havre. But when the time to board neared, Horatio was summoned back to Chicago to try to tend to what was left of his real estate holdings, a matter involving zoning before the City officials.

So he went west to Chicago as his wife and their 4 daughters boarded and traveled East over the Atlantic.

But on November 2nd, 1873 at 2 o'clock in the morning, the Ville de Havre collided with the British ship Loch Earn. The French ship sunk in 12 minutes and 226 people were lost.

Nine days later, Horatio received a telegram from Anna

It contained only two words

“Saved alone.”

Horatio booked passage and rushed to meet Anna in Wales.

One night during the voyage, Horatio was summoned to the bridge by the Captain.

The captain said, I know of your tragedy. We have done careful reckoning. and in a few minutes we will pass over the precise spot where the Ville de Havre went down.

Horatio thanked the Captain and returned to his cabin

And as he sailed over the wreck of the Ville de Havre, the gravesite of his four daughters, the words of a song came to him.

When he joined Anna

She told him that on the night of the collision,

The last thing she remembered was that

She held their infant little girl in her arms as she and the other three girls

Made it to the deck.

Mother and daughters tightly clinging to each other.

As the ship went down, the force of the ocean waves and the dynamics of the ship’s sinking so fast,

Tore the baby from her arms

That was the last thing she remembered.

All the children had drowned.

Anna was only saved by her unconscious body fortuitously coming to rest on a plank which somehow propped her up, above the water.

When the few survivors of the wreck were rescued

Anna was understandably devastated. All her 5 children were gone from her life.

Then she heard a voice saying

“you were spared for a purpose”

They had literally lost everything We cannot imagine their grief, their anxiousness about how they could possibly carry on with their lives.
 But what happened next is the point of this story.
 Anna and Horatio picked up the broken pieces of their lives
 They traveled the Holy Land
 And finally settled in Jerusalem
 They were blessed with three children

And they devoted the rest of their lives caring for the poor in Jerusalem

Feeding them
 Housing them
 And nurturing them

They earned a reputation of forthright Godly love.

Even the Muslims left them alone, knowing they were Christian

But recognizing they were administering to all people of Jerusalem, Christian, Jew and Muslims.

The song Horatio wrote as he crossed over his daughters' ocean grave is this:

It is named "It is well with my Soul" and appears in many hymnals.

The lyric goes like this;

When peace, like a river, attendeth my way
 When sorrows like sea billows roll
 Whatever my lot, Thou has taught me to say It is well
 It is well, with my soul.

Though Satan should buffet
 Though trials should come Let this blest assurance control

That Christ has regarded my helpless estate
 And hath shed His own blood for my soul

My sin oh the bliss of this glorious thought
 My sin, not in part but in whole
 Is nailed to the cross and I bear it no more Praise the Lord
 Praise the Lord
 Oh my soul

For me be it Christ, be it Christ hence to live
 If Jordan above me shall roll
 No pang shall be mine for in death as in life
 Thou wilt whisper Thy peace to my soul

But Lord tis for Thee for Thy coming we wait
 The sky, not the grave is our goal
 Oh trump of the angel oh voice of the Lord
 Blessed hope, blessed rest of my soul

And Lord haste the day when the faith shall be sight
 The clouds be rolled back as a scroll
 The trump shall resound and the Lord shall descend
 A song for the night oh my soul.

I tell you that story
     Perhaps an extreme one Because it helps put my own worries and challenges in perspective.
     And perhaps yours as well.

Jesus said
 Seek ye first the kingdom of God.
